

Sadie Robertson Huff Releases New Worship Initiative

Sadie Robertson Huff has launched a new endeavor, L0 WORSHIP, encompassing a record label and publishing group, and introducing a new band by the same name, comprised of worship leaders Brantley Pollock (Church of the City, Franklin, Tennessee), Kaylea Mayo (Christ Church, West Monroe, Louisiana) and Cazaiah Franklin (Nashville).

The first single from L0 WORSHIP, "Compass," written by Pollock, Mayo and Robertson Huff is available today, along with a lyric video.

L0 Worship will join Robertson Huff on her Spring 2021 ministry events.

"I started L0 Worship because I wanted to write songs that support the messages that Live Original is already sharing: that one encounter with Jesus can change everything," Robertson Huff says. "People don't always remember a 40-minute sermon—but they do remember a song! I wanted to help people find the words to sing over themselves in hard times. Worship has always done that for me. L0 Worship is a group of friends, songwriters and musicians that I have gathered together to use their gifting to write songs which magnify Jesus and lead people to that encounter with Him."

For more information including booking and tour news, please visit . {eo}