

Satan Wants You to Become a Repeat Offender of These Bad Habits

Are you tired of repeating the same mistakes? You desire to do right but find yourself failing every time. We must be imitators of Christ to conquer challenges. Let's explore some reasons for these bad habits.

Sin Waits at the Door

The devil is roaming around like a lion, ready to devour us any chance he gets. Through Jesus, we can overcome sin and temptation. God warned Cain that sin was creeping at the door of his heart (Gen. 4:7). He didn't take heed and killed Abel.

Need for Deliverance

It's not the will of God for us to be bound. Sometimes deliverance is needed to cast out spirits that may be influencing you. Deliverance is the children's bread. Jesus died on the cross for our freedom.

Unacknowledged Worth

Many people settle for less and don't wait on God's best. Anything is accepted, and they find themselves like a city without walls (Prov. 25:28). Once we know our worth, our standards will increase. As a result, we can see through a new perspective.

Disconnected From God

When you aren't in alignment with God, you may be in a backslidden state. You must consume the Word daily, so you don't sin against God. When you fall back in love with God, then you don't want to grieve Him.

Lack of Prayer

When your prayer life is dead, sin can rule in your life. You aren't communicating with God regularly. As a result, you give into temptation often. Prayer helps us not to be led by temptation (Matt. 26:41).

Generational Habits

Some habits we get from our families, and we must unlearn them and submit to God to break them. Jesus Christ is the curse breaker. One encounter with Him can change our lives.
