

‘Servant Leader’: Pastor Ray McCauley, South African Megachurch Founder, Dies at 75

Pastor Ray McCauley, internationally known anti-apartheid leader and founder of Rhema Bible Church in Johannesburg, South Africa, died at age 75 on Oct. 8. A leading Pentecostal and former co-chairman of the National Interfaith Council of South Africa, he died at his home, surrounded by friends and relatives, only days after celebrating his birthday.

Pastor Joshua McCauley, his only child, who is the current senior pastor of Rhema, announced the news in a statement released by the church:

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!