

Sharon Osbourne Gets Emotional Over President Trump's Voicemail After Ozzy's Death

Sharon Osbourne became visibly emotional when she shared a condolence voicemail left by Donald Trump after the death of her husband, rock icon Ozzy Osbourne. Speaking on the family podcast, she described the message as a gesture that “he didn’t have to call” but one she deeply appreciated.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

In the voicemail, President Trump told Sharon: “Hi Sharon, it’s Donald Trump and I just wanted to wish you the best and the family... Ozzy was amazing. He was an amazing guy. I met him a few times, and I want to tell you he was unique in every way and talented. ... I just wanted to wish you the best... Take care of yourself. Say hello to the family. Thanks, bye.”

Sharon said the call stood out for its sincerity, noting she had worked with Trump briefly (on Celebrity Apprentice in 2010) and had never expected such a personal contact. She emphasized that the call was “really kind of him.”

The Osbourne family also received a handwritten letter of condolence from King Charles III, which Sharon described as deeply meaningful. She praised the king for his compassion and noted that the recognition from global figures made the family feel supported during a difficult time.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Ozzy Osbourne died on July 22, 2025, at age 76. His cause of death was listed as cardiac arrest, acute myocardial infarction, coronary artery disease and Parkinson's disease.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

For Sharon, the gesture by President Trump—and the way she publicly acknowledged it—offers a moment of human connection amid grief. The story also reflects how personal relationships can transcend political divides, even in highly polarized times.

This article originally appeared on American Faith and is reposted with permission.