The funeral procession took place in Birmingham, England, where media lined the streets to see a glimpse of Osbourne's hearse and family. As the New York Post reported, the procession for Osbourne was coordinated by the Birmingham City Council. Fox News further noted that Birmingham's Lord mayor, Councillor Zafar Iqbal, said that this tribute for Osbourne is to honor him as a "son of Birmingham."

"Ozzy was more than a music legend – he was a son of Birmingham," he stated. "...it was important to the city that we support a fitting, dignified tribute ahead of a private family funeral. We know how much this moment will mean to his fans..."
