

Star Wars' Carrie Fisher Condemns Theater Banning Lord's Prayer Ad

Carrie Fisher says those who are offended by the Lord's Prayer ad before movies in England should "Get a life."

The Star Wars heroine blasted the ban against the Lord's Prayer ad before the premiere of Star Wars: The Force Awakens in UK cinemas, according to several sources.

"I have no idea why they would do that," Fisher said. "Offended? No. People should get a life. I don't think it is offensive to have a 'power of prayer' advert before Star Wars."

What do you think of her comments? Sound off!