

Starbucks CEO Caves to Gay Community Pressure

Starbucks Corp. CEO Howard Schultz at a ceremony marking the 10th anniversary of the first open Starbucks in Hong Kong on April 15, 2010. (AP Images/Kin Cheung)

As you've probably seen in the news recently, Starbucks CEO Howard Schultz recently canceled his appearance at the Willow Creek Leadership Summit under pressure from a handful of members of the gay community.

Seven hundred people signed an online petition saying Willow Creek is anti-gay and that Schultz should refuse to speak at the summit. I wasn't surprised, since we live today in a "cult of tolerance" that doesn't allow any dissenting opinions from what's deemed politically correct these days. That said, what interested me more was Pastor Bill Hybels' attitude and response. Here's a look. I would love to know your reaction:

{youtube width="500"}MFhSfr13Y6o{/youtube}