

'Suing the Devil' to Be Released Into 100 Million Homes on Good Friday

In what is seen as a huge boon to all Christian filmmakers, Suing the Devil will reach over 100 million households this Good Friday.

The film will be available through On Demand through Comcast, AT&T, Time-Warner, Cox, Cablevision, Rogers, Verizon, and iTunes in the U.S. and Canada.

"It's a miracle," says a spokesman for RiverRain Distribution. "We survived the hale storm of atheist groups and devil worshippers attacking the film almost 24/7."

The film will also be available on DVD through Bridgestone Media and Wesscott Marketing—two of the largest Christian distributors in the world.

While pastors are praying over the film, anti-Christian comments such as 'Christian propaganda', 'Christian-brainwashing' 'Christian idiots' and 'Eliminate Christians' are permeating through the film's message boards. One of the atheist groups emailed the producers warning of a 'mob attack' on IMDB. Within three days, the film's rating dropped from a near seven to a four on IMDB, which is the largest film site on the Internet.

Suing the Devil was also mentioned in the Los Angeles Times last weekend as having over 100,000 illegal downloads on 50 illegal sites.

"It's one of the most heavily downloaded indie movies ever, which is a compliment actually," says director Tim Chey. "And I'm glad it spread the Word to so many."

Suing the Devil first opened in select theaters nationwide. It had the second highest-grossing average of any independent film in the nation and was the number one Christian movie in America.

Suing the Devil stars Malcolm McDowell, Rebecca St. James, Corbin Bernsen, Shannen Fields ('Facing the Giants'), Tom Sizemore, Ros Gentle, and Bart Bronson. Hillsong also participated in the movie shot in Sydney, Australia.

In the film, Luke O'Brien, a washed-up janitor-turned-night law student, decides to sue Satan (Malcolm McDowell) for $8 trillion dollars. On the last day before Luke files a default judgment, Satan appears to defend himself. On Satan's legal team are 10 of the country's best trial lawyers. The entire world watches Legal TV to see who will win the Trial of the Century.
