As former FBI director James Comey testified about Michael Flynn, Russia and other political matters, televangelist Jim Bakker saw something lurking beneath the man's words.

"The four horsemen of the apocalypse are riding. The second one is going to be war and all of these things happening," Bakker says in a recent episode of Revelation in the News. "There's going to be famine and these sorts of things. But right now we're in the horse, riding today, the horse of conversation, the horse of war through words."
