

The Lord Says Your Case Is Closed; the Books Are Balanced

Can you picture it? The court room is full, and the jury is back from deliberation. The defendant and the plaintiff are earnestly sitting on the edge of their seats awaiting the final judgment.

I have been dialoguing with the Lord concerning past seasons for myself—seasons many of you may have walked through or currently face. A word I shared a year ago declared a final judgment to the last season of warfare. Many have been in some of the toughest battles, but I heard our Lord declaring with the loudest smash of His gavel from heaven, “case closed.”

The books will balance; it’s paid in full! A case gets closed as a decision is reached. Closed means dismissed, acquitted or convicted, and a case has gone to trial and reached a conclusion. This word was also confirmed as I was praying with a small group of women and another prophetess gave what the Lord has been saying to her: “All things are being brought into alignment with My will.” The accusations of the enemy were false and unfounded, and the attacks did not prosper (Rev. 12:10, Isa. 54:17). You did not take the bait of Satan and move in offense toward man or God. I want to encourage you to keep trusting in the goodness of the Lord.

As I sat with the Lord, I began to see marriages restored, provisions coming, ministries taking off, churches being restored, children being saved and bodies healed. Many have been crying out to the Lord for redemption and restoration from the never-ending battles, and these have had to stay so close to our Lord as they take His yoke and learn from directly from Him. The verdict has always been in your favor.

Jesus paid in full for your victory. You win! We fight from victory. These battles have never been yours; they have always belonged to the Lord (2 Chron. 20:15). Listen to our podcast below for more strategies to overcome.
