

The Mayan Apocalypse

Mark Hitchcock and Alton Gansky | Harvest House Publishers

Following his best-seller 2012: The Bible and the End of the World, Mark Hitchcock teamed with best-selling author Alton Gansky to create a suspenseful tale about the earth's projected expiration date: Dec. 21, 2012.

Andrew Morgan, a wealthy oil executive, is searching for the meaning of life. While on his quest for answers, he finds ancient Mayan predictions that the world will end in 2012. The claims seem to be supported by math and astronomy, so Morgan is determined to explore the findings. During his research, Morgan meets Lisa Campbell, a journalist also studying the Mayan calendar. But when he learns that Lisa is a Christian, he considers her opinions to be invalid.

As the expiration date draws closer, fears escalate after a meteorite hits Arizona, a volcano erupts and an asteroid seems to be on a collision course with Earth. Can anyone really know if this is the apocalypse? Does Lisa's faith have the answers after all? Will anyone survive?
