

The Power of Creating a Kingdom Values-Driven Workplace Culture

When small business owners and entrepreneurs create workplace cultures that are rooted in the values of the kingdom of God, the results are transformational. I am not referring to evangelism in the traditional sense but rather modeling the ways of Jesus Christ, which create invitations for others to experience the goodness of God.

When it comes to creating an authentic kingdom culture in the workplace, it begins with transformation within yourself; then it can extend to the people you engage with through your business. It requires intentionality and an active partnership with the Father, Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit so that you can remain rooted and grounded in love. When you co-labor with God and align with His heart, concerning your business and those in your sphere of influence, you can experience what the apostle Paul speaks to in Ephesians 3:20: immeasurably more than you could ever ask or imagine, according to His power that is at work within you.

Bobby Albert, CEO and president of Values-Driven LLC, has a passion for God, for people and for building strong workplace cultures. He has been an entrepreneur for over 4 decades and has seen firsthand the beauty of not being primarily driven by bottom-line financial results, but instead prioritizing transformation in the lives of people.

Listen to this episode of The Kingdom Driven Entrepreneur podcast to hear Bobby share his story of growing in His faith and hear the specific details of how he took a kingdom-centered framework and applied it powerfully to the workplace culture in his moving and storage business. The result? His business thrived and experienced a strong financial return on investment, and an eternal return on investment, that impacted his staff and local communities to the glory of God. {eoa}
