

This Coded Message Further Confirms the Trump Prophecies

In a recent video, a Christian commentator points out that President-Elect Donald Trump may have had a secret “code” message for members of the prophetic movement in his victory speech Wednesday morning.

In the speech, Trump references Triple Crown-winning race horse Secretariat. The maker of the video suggests this connects to an earlier prophecy about Trump’s ascendancy to become the 45th president of the United States.

He comes to two possible conclusions:

- 1. Either, Donald Trump heard about this Trump prophecy and is familiar with it and wanted to convey a coded message to Christians, that he is on board with the prophetic message, for America to change its direction back towards God and toward prosperity for the United States.*
- 2. Or an even more interesting potential, that Donald Trump was not really familiar with the content of the Trump prophecy, and God put in his mind to mention this race horse, which is further validation for the Trump prophecy given by Mark Taylor.*

Either way, as the video’s creator points out, it’s a good sign to those who are Christian that America has a second chance to turn toward God and to bring about change in this world for Christ.
