

This Is the Real Nazi Sympathizer Trying to Steal the GOP Nomination

The violent disruption of Donald Trump's rally in Chicago and the subsequent Leftist riot outside the venue coupled with the threats of violence that caused the cancellation of Ted Cruz campaign activities in Miami should have put Republicans and conservatives on notice that Obama's radical transformation of America was not going to end quietly.

Remarkably, most establishment Republicans seemed to take a "blame the victim" attitude and in what can only be described as politically motivated blindness chose to take Donald Trump to task for inciting the violence.

And as establishment Republicans so often do in cases like this, they quickly adopted the language of the Left and attacked Trump for being "divisive."

Even Ted Cruz, who is usually too smart to fall into this kind of trap, was momentarily suckered into attacking Trump until he realized he was also a target of the same tactics.

The Left singled out Trump and Cruz because they are the candidates they fear most; Cruz for his principled commitment to returning America to limited constitutional government and Trump for his populist attacks on globalism and the erosion of American sovereignty.

But let's be clear: It wouldn't matter whether Donald Trump or Jeb Bush was leading the Republican field. A summer of radical Leftist violence coming, and it was planning, building and organizing long before Trump and Cruz became the leading Republican candidates for president.

Back in January of this year (2016) our friend James Simpson published an outstanding exposé of the connection between the Black Lives Matter (BLM) activists who provide the shock troops for this revolution and the longtime hard core Leftists who fund it and put it into motion.

In “Reds Exploiting Blacks: The Roots of Black Lives Matter” Simpson explains that:

BLM launched in 2013 with a Twitter hashtag, #BlackLivesMatter, after neighborhood watchman George Zimmerman was acquitted in the Trayvon Martin killing. Radical Left activists Alicia Garza, Patrisse Cullors and Opal Tometi claim credit for the slogan and hashtag. Following the Michael Brown shooting in August 2014, Dream Defenders, an organization led by Working Families Party (ACORN) activist and Occupy Wall Street anarchist Nelini Stamp, popularized the phrase “Hands Up–Don’t Shoot!” which has since become BLM’s widely recognized slogan.

Garza, Cullors and Tometi all work for front groups of the Freedom Road Socialist Organization (FRSO), one of the four largest radical Left organizations in the country. The others are the Communist Party USA (CPUSA), Democratic Socialists of America (DSA), and the Committees of Correspondence for Democracy and Socialism (CCDS). Nelini Stamp’s ACORN–now rebranded under a variety of different names–works with all four organizations, and Dream Defenders is backed by the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), the ACLU, the Southern Poverty Law Center and others.

FRSO is a hereditary descendant of the New Communist Movement, which was inspired by Mao and the many communist revolutions throughout the world in the 1960s and 1970s. FRSO split into two separate groups in 1999, FRSO/Fight Back and FRSO/OSCL (Freedom Road Socialist Organization/Organizacion Socialista del Camino para la Libertad). Black Lives Matter and its founders are allied with the latter group.

Now, here's what we see as the key point in Simpson's article: following the money.

While Simpson's extensive documentation is too long to include in its entirety we will pull one key element: the role of Nazi collaborator and hard core Leftist billionaire George Soros.

Soros has put at least $12,460,121 into the Black Lives Matter movement and the shadowy radical Leftist network that funds it for one purpose and one purpose only: to destroy the "white" American core of capitalism, free markets, limited government, and American traditional culture and values.

Please note that in this context "white" does not mean a person of the Caucasian race. "White" in radical construction means anyone of any race, creed, nationality, color, sex or sexual preference who embraces these beliefs which to the radical Left are irredeemably evil and anyone who aligns with them is "white" in spirit and thus equally guilty of "white crimes."

The Black Lives Matter movement carries this narrative to unprecedented heights, observes Simpson, claiming that only whites can be racists. And while justifying violence to achieve "social justice," the movement's goal is to overthrow our society to replace it with a Marxist one.

Many members of the black community, especially the business owners, church members and religious leaders, would be shocked to learn that the intellectual godfathers of this movement are mostly white Communists, "queers" and leftist Democrats, intent on making blacks into cannon fodder for the radical Leftist revolution brewed by the money of a Nazi collaborator.

And it should not go unremarked that Soros has also hedged his bets and put a good bit of money into the campaign of Ohio

Governor John Kasich, the last advocate of open borders and amnesty for illegal aliens still in the race for the Republican nomination for President.

As our friend Gualberto Garcia Jones, J.D. of documented:

A simple search of Governor Kasich's 2016 Presidential campaign donations lists the Soros Fund Management as the sixth highest individual donor with $202,700. The seventh largest donor is the Duquesne Family Office with $150,000. On the Super PAC side, Kasich's New Day for America received $150,000 from Stanley Drukenmiller (who operates the Duquesne Family Office) and $200,000 from Scott Beset, who is employed by the Soros Fund Management.

Scott Bessent served as George Soros' chief investment manager until late 2015, while Stanley Druckenmiller currently manages $2 billion of Soros' hedge funds. Clearly, these three names, George Soros, Scott Bessent, and Stanly Drukenmiller represent George Soros just as New Day for America and Kasich for America represent Governor John Kasich.

In total therefore, George Soros, personally and through surrogates, has donated over $700,000 to support Gov. John Kasich's campaign.

Republicans and conservatives must force themselves to recognize that the violence perpetrated at the Trump rally and the threats against the Cruz campaign in Miami were just the probing movements of the coming summer's hardcore Leftist revolution that intends through violence and intimidation to hijack the American political process, thwart the will of the American people and take to the next level the oppressive anti-constitutional policies that Barack Obama is using to fundamentally transform America.

The only way to stop this revolution is for Republicans and conservatives to stand together strongly and immediately for law and order and to campaign on maintaining it in the face of the provocations we can be certain are coming.
