Cindy Jacobs, Prophetic Elders Rebuke False Trump Prophecy

Prophetic ministry leaders Cindy Jacobs and Bishop Bill Hamon have rebuked a false Trump prophecy that spoke about the judgment of America, as well as the Leviathan spirit in conjunction with it.

In a recent Zoom call of the Apostolic Council of Prophetic Elders, Cindy Jacobs, Bishop Bill Hamon, Jennifer LeClaire and James Goll came together to provide their public statement on this false prophecy.

“From the Apostolic Council of Prophetic Elders targeting president Donald Trump and America,” the statement began. “The ACPE was initially convened after several questionable national level words were released, prophetic words that cause great confusion with the body of Christ. As the Council of Prophetic Elders, our intent remains to hear the Word of the Lord together and seek God’s wisdom.”

Celebrities Admitting to Witchcraft Practice

In a world where we see a rise in the occult, we are also seeing more and more celebrities admitting to being part of the witchcraft scene. As Christians, we must press in and pray for these people to have their lives changed.

In a reaction video by Nick Jones, he shared the Instagram photos of Kendall Jenner admitting to being a witch on her birthday.

On Instagram, Jenner posted a photos of her birthday cakes with the caption "Another year. I'm blessed. Thank you." However, one of Jenner's cakes had the writing on it, "Witches don't age."

Pope Francis Appoints Pro-LGBTQ Preacher

Pope Francis has sparked controversy among Catholics by appointing pro-LGBT Father Roberto Pasolini as the preacher of the Papal Household. Father Pasolini replaces Cardinal Raniero Cantalamessa, who held the role for 44 years.

In his new position, Father Pasolini will deliver sermons during Advent and Lent to the Pope and the Roman Curia.

Concerns about Father Pasolini stem from past statements in which he speculated about same-sex relationships in biblical narratives. In one instance, he encouraged imagining a homosexual relationship between Jonathan and King David, saying, "We can imagine it, we can think about it, we can like to think about it, but it is not written."

'Once-in-a-Decade' Bomb Cyclone Just Hit the US

The "bomb cyclone" that is hitting the Northwest is going to be even worse than the experts originally thought. It is being projected that this rapidly intensifying "bomb cyclone" will stall near the West Coast, and that means that some areas of California, Oregon and Washington could get pounded by very high winds and relentless rain for days. In fact, the "Washington Post" is reporting that some areas of California could actually get 20 inches of rain. That much rainfall in such a short period of time would likely cause extremely destructive flooding. In the mountains, there will be blizzard conditions in some areas and the amount of snowfall will be measured in feet.

This is truly an extremely rare storm. Yesterday, I explained that experts were warning that the central pressure of this storm would fall so fast that it would double the criteria for a bomb cyclone.

But now we are being told that this storm could actually become a "triple-bomb."
