New Details Emerge Over Steve Lawson Firing

New details have come out since Steven Lawson was removed from his position as the pastor of Trinity Bible Church of Dallas.

Phil Johnson, the executive director of Grace to You, who is also an elder of John MacArthur’s Grace Community Church, gave the details of the “inappropriate relationship” which resulted in Lawson’s dismissal from the ministry.

“Inappropriate is too ambiguous – as if someone merely caught them holding hands,” Johnson wrote in a since-deleted X post which ChurchLeaders captured with a screenshot. “This was a 5-year relationship with strong romantic overtones. Both parties insist no literal fornication was involved, but their tie to one another was adulterous in spirit, if not in fact."

Massive Revival Moment as 10,000 Seek Jesus at University of Arkansas

In the fourth major collegiate revival in less than a month, thousands of students gathered at the University of Arkansas on Thursday night, Sept. 19, to seek Jesus Christ and find salvation in His name.

Unite US reports that 10,000 students from 67 different universities gathered in Bud Walton Arena.

"Jesus met us there," the ministry said in an Instagram post. "We were blown away by His presence in the room and how it carried over to baptisms. It was a night we'll never forget."

Rare Discovery From Ancient Egypt Points to Exodus

The last year has brought with it a treasure trove of discoveries from the ancient world. From Jerusalem to Bahrain, antiquities continue to prove the Bible is a reliably accurate teller of ancient history.

Recently, a discovery in Egypt announced by the Egyptian Ministry of Tourism and Antiquities revealed an ancient fort which is believed to be 3,200 years old, and which gives further confirmation as to who the reigning Pharaoh was when Moses led the Israelites out of bondage in the book of Exodus.

While the Bible does not specifically state who the monarch was that ruled of the Hebrews, historians widely believe it to be Rameses II.

Kim Clement: The 'Hypnotic November' Tidal Wave Is Coming

Is Kim Clement's "hypnotic November" prophecy for 2024?

This prophetic word by Clement about a "hypnotic November" was given to him by the Lord not once, but twice.

"Do you believe I am the Creator, the Ruler, the One who started life from its beginning?" Clement began the prophecy. "Then I spoke, and when I spoke, light came...I was in the beginning, and I am here today."
