Trump spoke first to Putin in a lengthy, wide-ranging phone call. "We agreed to work together, very closely, including visiting each other's Nations. We have also agreed to have our respective teams start negotiations immediately," Trump posted on social media.

Later, in a separate post, Trump said, "I just spoke to President Volodymyr Zelenskyy of Ukraine. The conversation went very well. He, like President Putin, wants to make PEACE. ...It is time to stop this ridiculous War, where there has been massive, and totally unnecessary, DEATH and DESTRUCTION. God bless the people of Russia and Ukraine!"

Zelenskyy also spoke out after the conversation, stating on X, "No one wants peace more than Ukraine. Together with the U.S., we are charting our next steps to stop Russian aggression and ensure a lasting, reliable peace. As President Trump said, let's get it done. We agreed to maintain further contact and plan upcoming meetings."

I had a meaningful conversation with @POTUS. We long talked about opportunities to achieve peace, discussed our readiness to work together at the team level, and Ukraine's technological capabilities—including drones and other advanced industries. I am grateful to President Trump...

He also said it's not feasible for NATO to admit Ukraine to the alliance. "The United States does not believe that NATO membership for Ukraine is a realistic outcome of a negotiated settlement," Hegseth said.
