

Trump Tweets: Priebus Out, Kelly In

President Donald Trump announced his latest change of staff via Twitter Friday evening.

"I am pleased to inform you that I have just named General/Secretary John F Kelly as White House Chief of Staff. He is a Great American..." Trump tweeted. "...and a Great Leader. John has also done a spectacular job at Homeland Security. He has been a true star of my Administration. I would like to thank Reince Priebus for his service and dedication to his country. We accomplished a lot together and I am proud of him!"

Prior to this appointment, Kelly was the secretary for homeland security.

White House Communications Director Anthony Scaramucci threatened former Chief of Staff Reince Priebus in a conversation with The New Yorker.

"Reince is a [Expletive] paranoid schizophrenic, a paranoiac," Scaramucci said in the phone call. He accused Priebus of leaking information to the press.

Earlier today, Rick Joyner says he had a vision of Priebus.

"I saw some things going on in the White House," Joyner shares in a recent Facebook live video. "[I] trust those of you who perceive this as prophetic and take it that way are praying, interceding and doing whatever you can."

Joyner says he saw Chief-of-Staff Reince Priebus "leaking."

"He was caught by a trap that was set up to catch him, and he just fell right into it."

Sources tell media Priebus resigned privately yesterday.

Rumors of a Priebus firing began circulating earlier this year, even before Scaramucci entered the scene.
