"They're not from Mars. They're not from another planet. They're from here," Carlson says. "They've always been here. These are spiritual entities. This is my view, and I sincerely believe it."

□ Tucker on UAP's: "They're not from Mars. They're not from another planet. They're from here. They've always been here. These are spiritual entities ... It's clear that these things reside deep in the earth, under the water, and in the atmosphere."

Carlson has publicly shared his thoughts on faith and spirituality in the past, especially after publicly describing his experience of being mauled by a demon.

[I was] physically mauled...by a demon," Carlson said for the "Christianities" documentary. "Or by something unseen that left claw marks on my sides."

As someone who has encountered the supernatural, Carlson sees the validity that unidentified objects and strange sightings aren't just happenstance. There is something darker happening behind the scenes.

"There have been so many sightings in this country and around the world, that if they were from another galaxy far, far away there would be some satellite evidence of that. They'd be picked up coming into our atmosphere, and of course that's not [the case]," says Carlson.

"It's clear that these things reside deep in the earth, under the water and in the atmosphere," he says. "I do think all the puzzle pieces are sort of in plain sight."

Christian author, L.A. Marzulli, has repeatedly warned people against viewing these beings as harmless. Instead, he believes that we could very well be dealing with demonic forces such as the Nephilim. These fallen angels have been prophetically declared in the book of Daniel in the end times to have hybrid children with humans, showing the depravity of the world. As the the world continues to grow darker, and biblical prophecy continues to come to fruition, this is a warning we should heed.

"They're soulless. They're not human. They're part human but they're soulless. Only God can give you a soul and they're looking for a soul," Marzulli says of Nephilim hybrids.

No matter what kind of spiritual entities there may be trying to stir up issues in our world today, there is no power or principality greater than the ultimate power and authority of Christ alone. At the end, every knee will bow and tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord of all.
