

Use Your Little

Start with whatever you have. Don't waste time complaining about what you don't have. Don't despise small beginnings. Everything begins small. You began as a small embryo in your mother's womb. Every flower began as a small seed. Wealth is often created from a very small initial investment. When the person is faithful to continue investing small amounts, compound interest can grow a meager amount of money into a sizeable fund.

Use the seemingly small ability that you have in the same way. Let this be a season when you find creative ways to use your talents. As you use whatever you have, it will increase and continue to grow.

Now, ask yourself. What do I have that seems so small? How can I use this small beginning to start something that can grow and become great? Be willing to start with what you have today. Watch and see your small beginning turn into a great achievement!
