

Video Game Lets Players Murder Priests, Pro-Lifers and Even Unborn Baby

Finding humor in abortion is apparently a quickly growing trend.

Just last week, Teen Vogue published a story in which the writer argued abortion “can be funny.” Now, as Argentina’s Senate prepares to vote next month on legislation that would legalize abortion until the 14th week of pregnancy, one developer has created a video game that grotesquely mocks the pro-life movement.

According to Kotaku, the object of the graphic game—“Doom Fetito”—is for players to procure an abortion-inducing drug called misoprostol. In order to obtain the abortifacient, players have to defeat Nazi-like police officers, pro-life women and priests, all of whom they can kill. {eo}

Click here to read the rest of this story from our content partners at Faithwire.

The news of the day doesn’t have to leave you feeling hopeless and angry. Sign up for the Faithwire Newsletter for encouraging stories delivered right to your inbox.