

Virginia Earthquake Rattles D.C., New York

New York is shaking—and it's not just Wall Street. In what some may view as a sign of the end times, a earthquake struck Virginia on Tuesday afternoon, rocking the Northeast U.S.

The earthquake hit Washington, D.C., forcing the Pentagon to evacuate, before rolling over Manhattan and causing skyscrapers to sway in the sky.

Developing...