

Watch How These People Changed Lives Through Generous Living

Everyone, no matter where you are in life, has something to give. So when former businessman Brad Formsma encountered a family whose bikes had just been stolen, he knew there was something he and his family could do. What he didn't know was how that act could start a movement that's transforming lives with the biblical truth of generous living.

Watch some of the stories of how people like Brad are changing lives by giving everything from soccer balls to body parts to the gift of family.
