

Watch Live: Franklin Graham's Prayer Rally for the Republican National Convention

With the Republican National Convention about to begin at 1 p.m. EDT in Cleveland, Ohio, evangelist Franklin Graham is calling on all Christians to pray, in the spirit of 2 Chronicles 7:14, for those involved in the political process.

"Much will be debated over the next several days at the both the Republican and the Democratic and conventions," he said Monday morning. "Without question, our nation's leaders on both sides of the aisle and our political process need prayer. We are in desperate need of divine intervention."

He was scheduled to hold a live "prayercast" on his Facebook page beginning at noon EDT. Click here to go directly to his page to watch or take part in the call to prayer.

"I believe that America needs prayer now more than ever before," he said Sunday. "God's Word tells us that the prayers of a righteous person avails much (James 5:16). Can you imagine what God might do if there are tens of thousands of us praying together for this convention, for our leaders and for our nation?"
