

WATCH: They Asked Santa for What?

The holiday season brings out the boxing gloves for Christians and atheists, going to the mat over greetings and meanings.

But one atheist group has taken to the street—make that main street—with his message about Jesus and Santa Claus being the rough equivalents of each other.

“We are targeting atheists, in-the-closet atheists, especially, and letting them know it’s OK to have this conversation,” said the group’s spokesperson.

“It’s meant for the holiday season, which Christians do not own,” the anchor says.

Watch the video to find out more about what’s causing the conversation of holiday fiction verses reality.

How would you respond to atheists in your family when asked about the reality of Jesus?