

What Happens When Christians Walk Away From the Body of Christ

When one walks away from church, he or she creates a devastating ripple effect that essentially leads to death.

“If you were to cut off any part of the body, it would get weak and sick, rapidly dying if it were not quickly and properly reattached,” Rick Joyner writes in his new book, Army of the Dawn. “This too is true of Christians when they leave the body. They may temporarily feel relief when they leave ...”

The body of Christ needs believers just as much as believers need the body to survive.
