

What You Need to Know About COVID-19 Prophecies and the 2020 Election

Like other Americans, and especially as a business owner, Stephen Strang has been forced to deal with the inconveniences and frustrations of COVID-19 over the past couple of months.

Through it all, what the CEO of Charisma Media realizes is that life for Americans will change and will continue to change in the coming months due to the coronavirus, and things will be significantly different for many heading into the crucial presidential election of 2020 this fall.

He documents those changes and shares stories of prophecies about COVID-19 from prophets like David Wilkerson and Chuck Pierce and how the pandemic has affected America and the kingdom in his new book, God, Trump and COVID-19. The book reveals insider information about China, the virus and the ever-increasing stakes of the upcoming election.

“What we’re going through, this is actually historic,” Strang told Dr. Steve Greene on a recent episode of Greenelines on the Charisma Podcast Network. “This has given people maybe an awareness of what’s going on in their lifetime rather than just getting paid at the end of the week or being sure that your kids get to soccer practice—or whatever things we have to go through during the day. This is a much bigger picture to maybe stretch them a bit spiritually. ...

“This prophecy with David Wilkerson, he did not live to see the fulfillment of it. Bars are closed; churches are closed. Who would have thought that the streets of New York City would be empty? I certainly wouldn’t.

“With the election, I think all of us need to be informed voters. Too many don't register to vote or they stay home. We can't do that. The stakes are too high."

For more of Stephen Strang's thoughts on COVID-19 and the upcoming election, listen to the entire podcast.