For those traveling into Baton Rouge for the service, the ministry recommends staying at either the Renaissance Hotel or the Element Baton Rouge South.

During this time of both mourning and celebration, ministry leaders have reflected on Swaggart's impact on the world.

On X, Pastor Jentezen Franklin recounted Swaggart's legacy.

Honoring the life and legacy of a great man today. He finished stronger than he began and won millions of souls. His wife and family continue in his legacy to share Christ with the world. What more could anyone ask for? Home at last!

Bishop Alan DiDio and prophetic voice Joseph Z discussed the fascinating prophecy Swaggart made decades ago about gathering the harvest of souls.

"Jimmy Swaggart carried a global media anointing," Joseph Z said.

"This is not casual. This is a key transitional moment. If you can see it, you can be a partaker of it," DiDio explained.

In a powerful message, evangelist Perry Stone also recounted how a phone call from Swaggart marked his life forever.

"Before I was ever married he was very pivotal in my life," he said. "After I got married, we watched him on TV consistently..." Stone said.

Continue to pray for the Swaggart family in this time of great rejoicing and sorrow.
