

When Grandparents Are Forced to Raise Their Grandchildren

One out of three households in America is led by a grandparent today, with many of those homes including children (with families) who have moved back in. What should you do if, instead of enjoying retirement full-time, you're unexpectedly parenting again? Watch the story of one couple faced with this challenge.