

Who Are You a Prophet To?

Many people declare that they are prophets. I like to ask them, "Who are you a prophet to?" If you are a prophet, there will be a clarity of the assignment.

Prophet is not an identity ... It's a job description.

Jeremiah was called as a prophet to nations; that was his assignment.

Then God told him what he was called to do to fulfill that assignment.

Do you know who God called you to? Do you know the people you are assigned to?

If you don't, then listen in to this podcast episode where Keith talks about the life of Jeremiah and his assignment.

You will feel a passion to get a greater sense of clarity about your own assignment.

We need many prophets. We just need them to be clear on where they are called to.

It not only creates greater effectiveness but it also creates job security.

If you know your specific assignment as a prophet, you will no longer be competing with other prophets that you feel are similar to you.

You will carry more appreciation for their unique assignments as well as value your own. {eo}
