

WikiLeaks: Did John Podesta Attend a 'Spirit Dinner' Hosted by an Occultist?

In a June 28, 2015, email to Hillary Clinton's campaign chairman, John Podesta, his brother Tony asks if he and/or his wife Mary will be in New York City on July 7 of that year and able to attend a dinner event.

It all sounds pretty mundane, until you read the forwarded part of the email, and add the proper context. Tony Podesta had forwarded his brother a request to have them both attend a "spirit dinner" hosted by "performance artist" Marina Abramovic.

Abramovic is an occultist who infuses her "performance art" heavily with elements of witchcraft. The "spirit dinners" she puts on involves painting the "recipe" for the "dinner" on the wall with congealed blood. Those "ingredients" usually involve blood and other unmentionable bodily fluids.

Her past performance art exhibits have involved gore and painful rituals that dabble deeply in the occult. She's most famous for a 1974 "performance" in which she laid out objects on the stage and, for the next six hours, allowed the audience to do anything they wanted to her with them.

It's not clear whether or not he attended the "dinner," but the fact that his own brother thought it would be something he would be interested in, in itself, telling. While that was the only reference to the occult in Thursday evening's "doc drop," it was far from the only disturbing revelation.

Here are some of the other headline-grabbing reveals from WikiLeaks:

- Advice to Hillary About WikiLeaks
- Al Gore and Hillary Don't Like Each Other
- Hillary Was to Come Out Against Keystone XL to Deflect From Emails
- Jennifer Palmieri: I Told You So ... Comey Was a Bad Choice
- Clinton Ally in 2015: Isn't it Going to Leak Out of the FBI Anyway?
- 'Bryan [Pagliano] Was the One Who Retrieved All Our Emails'
- Not Every Email Was Handed Over to State Department
- 2016 Primaries Were Rigged—in 2014?