

Steven Curtis Chapman Releases New Song 'Together' About COVID-19

Singer/songwriter Steven Curtis Chapman released a new song titled "Together" about the reality of COVID-19 and how, even though it's brought fear to his life, realizing God is with him is helping him move forward. The song also features Brad Paisley, Tasha Cobbs Leonard and Lauren Alaina. The lyric video shows hospital rooms and nurses, empty streets and people FaceTiming each other. A song about persevering through trials, it encourages everyone to realize that they're not alone.

"You know I've always got a lot to say/ But this has left me nothing but afraid/ And I've got one thing I'm holding on to/ And it's Your hand."
