

70,000 'Holy Honey Bees' Swarm Historic Colorado Church

Nearly 70,000 bees have made their home in the rafters of a historic Colorado church.

The staff of Pine Street Church in Boulder, Colorado, discovered dead bees in a church classroom and eventually traced them to a hive built in the rafters.

The insects' appearance has some staff worried.

"We just want people to feel safe," Cathy Compton says. "Sometimes that's hard when there's something with a stinger flying around."

What is the church going to do? Watch the video to see.
