

A Prophetic Moment? Trump Aims to Bring 'Eternal Peace' to the Middle East

President Trump is pursuing a path to become a global peacemaker by advancing a 20-point peace plan for Gaza.

In a meeting on Monday with Benjamin Netanyahu, the president announced how they could establish "eternal peace in the Middle East," as the New York Post reported.

Part of this peace plan includes a group of peacekeepers that would make up a "Board of Peace," with Trump himself being the chairman of this board.

"We discussed how to end the war in Gaza. But it's just a part of the bigger picture, which is peace in the Middle East, and let's call it eternal peace in the Middle East," Trump said.

As of right now, Jordan, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Qatar, Pakistan, Indonesia, and the United Arab Emirates have given praise to Trump for this initiative. The New York Post noted that these countries, "welcome President Donald J. Trump's leadership and his sincere efforts to end the war in Gaza." These nations are also prepared to "engage positively and constructively with the United States and the parties toward finalizing the agreement..."

Trump noted that Israel and the other Middle Eastern nations

Within this 20-point plan, Gaza would become a “deradicalized terror free zone,” it would be rebuilt to greater benefit the people who live there and the war could end effectively if all terms are met, including the return of the Israeli hostages.

From a prophetic perspective, President Trump’s 20-point peace plan could be seen as aligning with the biblical pattern of a global leader pursuing peace in the Middle East—a key theme in end-times prophecy. Scripture in Daniel 9:27 and 1 Thessalonians 5:3 speaks of a time when a covenant of peace will be established, yet the world will be deceived as the stage is set for the rise of the Antichrist. The gathering of nations around a single peace initiative and the call for global cooperation may reflect a time when humanity seeks security and unity, unaware that deception is on its way.
