

AG Bondi Launches Task Force to Combat Anti-Christian Bias

U.S. Attorney General Pam Bondi hosted Cabinet officials Tuesday for the first meeting of the Department of Justice's Anti-Christian Bias Task Force.

As CBN News reported, President Donald Trump launched the initiative through an executive order in February, and was fulfilling a promise made to millions of supporters. In that order, he promised to protect the religious freedoms of Americans and end the anti-Christian weaponization of government.

Bondi conducted a news conference with various Cabinet members present to discuss how to move forward with the initiative.

"This task force will identify any unlawful anti-Christian policies, practices or conduct across the government, seek input from the faith-based organizations and state governments to end Anti-Christian bias," she said.

"As President Donald Trump has stated, the Biden administration engaged in an egregious pattern of targeting peaceful Christians while ignoring violent, anti-Christian offenses," Bondi told a small group of reporters. "The president is right."

Bondi was joined by some of those American Christians who were unfairly targeted by the Biden Administration for their religious beliefs, according to a Justice Department news release.
