

'Awesome God': Worship and Praise Breaks Out at Mar-a-Lago!

Praise and worship filled the rooms of Mar-a-Lago over the weekend.

From videos circulating on social media, Christian praise broke out at Mar-a-Lago this past weekend with Let Us Worship leader, Sean Feucht, leading people in worship with Rich Mullins' song, "Awesome God," and Chris Tomlin's "Holy Forever."

This is not the first time that the president's Florida home became the center for worship. Prior to Trump's inauguration, people gathered together at Mar-a-Lago to sing “The Blessing.” Trump’s election victory party also included praise with supporters singing, “How Great Thou Art.” The president was not in Florida this weekend.

As worship resounds through the halls of Mar-a-Lago, it’s clear that something is taking place deeper than a political gathering or public appearance—God is being exalted in a place of power and influence. In a time of spiritual shaking, the spontaneous eruption of praise at Mar-a-Lago is a powerful reminder: no matter the venue, when God’s people lift His name, heaven responds—and history is marked.
