

Chris Reed Issues Prophetic Call to Prayer Amid Northeast Drone Sightings

The recent sightings of massive drones over New Jersey and New York have sparked a wave of speculation and concern. With reports of drones as large as SUVs hovering in the skies, the issue has become a hot topic of debate. Congressman Josh Gottheimer has pointed the finger at Iran, asserting that these drones are part of an orchestrated operation. However, the Pentagon has pushed back against these claims, denying any direct evidence linking the drones to Iran. Amid this unfolding mystery, prophetic insights from ministry leader Chris Reed offer a spiritual lens through which we can view these events.

Reed has issued an urgent call to prayer in light of the drone sightings. "Let me tell you about these drones that are in the Northeast right now; we have got to pray," Reed says in a recent broadcast. Sharing his prophetic experience, he warned, "Iran is behind this, and it's very disturbing that President Biden is not more involved." Reed's concerns echo those of many who feel the federal government's response has been lackluster. He highlighted the drones' alarming size, emphasizing, "We're talking about drones the size of SUVs that, if they fell from the sky, could kill people."

This prophetic insight suggests that these drones are part of a larger scheme involving Iran, its proxies and even indirect involvement from China. "I believe these drones are sent," Reed explained, connecting the dots to a potential terrorist threat. "Iran and its proxies are scouting out areas right now to cause terrorism in the United States in the Northeast. There is a terrorist attack planned in the next few weeks, and we have to pray.”

While Reed’s warnings are grave, he draws parallels to biblical accounts where prayer changed the course of events. “Just like Hezekiah was told, ‘Get your house in order; you’re going to die,’ but because he turned his face to the wall and prayed, the Lord added 15 years to his life,” Reed explained. He also referenced the story of Nineveh, where collective repentance averted destruction. “The prophetic word wasn’t wrong; it was a conditional word,” he clarified, urging believers to intercede in prayer to avert potential disaster.

Reed’s prophetic vision included a grim scenario: an explosion at the top of a building in New York. “I’ve seen an explosion of a building in the Northeast,” he revealed, adding that other prophetic confirmations have pointed to similar threats. He warned that these drones are part of a coordinated effort, with terrorists scouting locations to deploy IEDs or other attacks. “There’s lots of drones flying over America, and they’re looking for the right places at the right time to hit,” Reed said, emphasizing the seriousness of the situation.

While these warnings may evoke fear, Reed’s message ultimately points to the hope found in Christ. He reminded believers that God reveals such threats not to instill panic but to call His people to action through prayer. “God gives us these things; He reveals these things so we can pray to avert them, minimize them or lessen the damage,” Reed explained.

As Christians, we must remain grounded in the Word of God during times of uncertainty. Scripture provides the foundation needed to discern truth from deception and to stand firm in faith. As the Bible instructs in 1 Thessalonians 5:20-21, "Do not despise prophecies. Examine all things. Firmly hold onto what is good." Every prophetic word, including this one from Chris Reed, must be tested according to Scripture and the spirit in which it is given to ensure it aligns with God's truth (1 John 4:1).

Moreover, believers have no reason to live in fear. The assurance of salvation through Jesus Christ offers unshakable peace, even in the face of dire warnings. As Reed's message explains, prayer has the power to change outcomes, just as it did in biblical times. And ultimately, we can rest in the knowledge that Jesus Christ will reign in victory forever, no matter what the enemy tries to throw our way.
