

Chris Reed's New 'Jesus Revolution' Message

Chris Reed's new church, Jesus Revolution, recently launched, with believers flocking to the church to worship, hear messages and gain prophetic insight.

In his Oct. 20 message "I Won't Back Down," Reed discusses the person of Elijah and his battle against Jezebel and the false prophets of Baal, and how those with prophetic giftings can relate to him.

"These priests who led the Israelites astray in Baal worship were now dead at the hands of Elijah," Reed says. "These were basically the state church. They were the priests or false prophets of Baal and Jezebel had believed in these priests so much she actually supported them from the were bought and paid for false ministry, propagating a false gospel. And Elijah finds himself greatly discouraged after one of the most momentous victories in all of the Bible."

Reed makes the point that after God rained down fire from heaven, Elijah must have thought that this would've surely been the act to bring about revival. Little did Elijah know or realize that soon he would be on the run for his life.

"After the great victory of overcoming 850 to gets this little note from Jezebel that sent him into a depression that went on for days and weeks. See, it's true, it's like Elijah; when you are a prophetic, you are more of a feeler," says Reed. "And so, you are more susceptible to depression and discouragement, and it can impact you more than it can impact a regular you're prophetic, you feel more."

Reed mentions how the Jezebel spirit quite often is coined and used in phrases frequently in our world today. However, he points out how the enemy truly does work in ways just as Jezebel did.

“He [the enemy] wants to take you out. He doesn’t usually just ask for permission to allow you to have a car wreck on your way to church. No, he likes to torture you with the fear. See, Jezebel wanted to drive him into fear; harass him and emotionally torture him so that he would run,” Reed continues.

Ultimately, we must stay determined even when we are facing a mountain, even when we see something terrifying in front of us.

“Determination in the face of fear is also a possibility. Determination in the face of fear is is also a choice that you can make and that you can choose. I won’t back down,” says Reed.

During this new season for both Chris Reed and Jesus Revolution Church, pray for them as they navigate all that the Lord has for them.
