

Chuck Pierce: God's Already Won the Supply Chain War

Read time: 2 minutes 46 seconds

It feels like 2022 was the year of the supply chain crisis.

While the legacy media will try and blame the war in Ukraine for all of the problems affecting the world today, the truth is much deeper than that.

Recently, Prophet Chuck Pierce addressed the issue that has placed fear in the hearts of many: provisions.

But Pierce reminded listeners, God is bigger than the season the world is in, for He can supply all of our needs.

"You want to understand, God's already given you authority to multiply either what you have or to find new sources to multiply," Pierce explained. "And so, this year, the warfare comes, how will we fill the house with the supply that will sustain us for years to come."

With this prophetic advice comes the encouragement to plan according to the will of the Lord in a person's life. Preparation can take different forms for different people, but the end result should be obedience to the call of the Lord.

"Think [creatively], don't let the world produce fear in you because that creates an unsound mind," Pierce extolled. "You have to keep thinking creatively so you keep expanding your thought processes and keep walking through the tumultuous times we're in."

Thinking strategically and using wisdom gained from studying the Word of God can guide Christians through the upcoming seasons, much like Joseph navigated the drought in ancient Egypt.

Pierce brought to light the need for Christians to take the authority that has already been given to them after Jesus' victory on the cross.

"I'm prophesying that God is going to give us authority, put us in strategic places, give us access and we are going to be able to say one word that causes things to shift," Pierce declared. "See, God gives us supply so that we have the provision we need to advance His is so keen for us as we advance into the season ahead.

In war, and Pierce believes the current season the world is in is a season of war, identifying the target or objective is a mandatory feat to accomplish one's mission. Without this identifier, there is no mission. For Christians, identifying the season we are in as Pierce has explained allows for the guiding through of that season and overcoming the enemy.

"I think that the main war that we're in this year, it's a war over supply lines. And yet God has already given us the victory... and we can see from a higher place that that the enemy doesn't have access to," Pierce said.

Fear will try and derail the plan God has for many, but when believers place their faith in His strength, provision and will, there is no safer place to be. It is not always easy, in fact it is often difficult, but believing the Word when it says His ways are higher than our own (Isa. 55:8-9) it opens the door for the Lord's blessing and provision to defy the current state the world is in and serve as an example of His ultimate authority over all things.

To view the entire interview with Prophet Chuck Pierce, click here. {eoa}

Bring Charisma magazine home with a subscription today!

James Lasher is Staff Writer for Charisma Media.