5 Reasons You Can't Afford to Wait Any Longer to Jump into the River

All around you is the rumble of revival and reformation. An earthquake of American freedom. It beckons you!

But you are waiting. Every atom of your being screams for you to jump into the river that is healing America. All the cells of your body are vibrating with anticipation. But you hesitate. You are hoping your lukewarm friends and church will change.

The tide is turning. Millions are ready to cast off the yoke of the corruption of both Democrats and RINOs. Voices rise in schools, corporate headquarters and in all the halls of power. Even leftist commentators and celebrities are defecting from the insane agenda of Biden.

It's a Shemitah Year Again. Are You Prepared for an Economic Crisis?

It seems that every seven years or so, we go through an involuntary economic reset or recession that dramatically changes the dreams and destinies of many. It may be accompanied by "wars and rumors of wars" or by famines, plagues, earthquakes or eruptions, just as Jesus warned of at the "end of the age" (Matt. 24:3-14).

Many astute observers also see these seven-year cycles beginning and ending on or around the annual, autumn celebration of Rosh Hashanah, in those years. The biblical convocation is a two-day, sabbath observance and is calculated by a lunar calendar and stipulated in Scripture as beginning on the first day, of the seventh Hebrew month known as Tishri. This year (2022) the remembrance will be celebrated from sundown on Sunday, Sept. 25, until sundown on Sept. 27.

The last 20-plus years would indicate to many that this year is again a “Shemitah” or culmination of a seven-year cycle, with the possibility of a “great economic reset” in its wake. Remind yourself of the dramatic events and/or economic crises we all faced after 9/11 and then in the fall, Shemitah seasons of 2008 and 2015.

Intercession Needed as Kim Kardashian Realizes Her Dating Habits Are ‘Not Working’

How many lives would be influenced if someone of Kim Kardashian’s fame invited Jesus into her heart?

There have been many celebrities over the years who have lived lives that were steeped in sin, as Christians have done as well, only to find that fame and fortune left them empty in their lives.

Nothing is impossible for God, including having His followers among Hollywood and the elite of society. Celebrities like Candace Cameron Bure, Christ Pratt and Justin Bieber have all confessed publicly to loving and believing in Jesus. Does that make them perfect? No. But to see that Kim Kardashian is realizing that something just is not right in her life is revealing. The possibility of the scales being lifted from her eyes opens the door for God to show her His amazing love that is second-to-none. {eoa}
