Glenn Beck Warns Americans to Soberly Prepare for This Frightening Scenario

Conservative political commentator Glenn Beck is sounding the alarm: We may be entering into a season of time where the Bible will be outlawed.

Beck says God revealed to him that "there is going to come a time when our founding documents"—including the U.S. Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, the Federalist Papers, etc.—"are not going to be able to be found." And more importantly, Beck says, citizens need to "prepare for a time when you will not have access to Scriptures."

Beck says he isn't sure how soon that time will be in America, but he said it is coming. And, he said, there are definitely things we can do to get ready for it.

Beck is a practicing Mormon. Mormonism is a cult and does not hold to orthodox beliefs about the Bible, Jesus Christ and many other doctrines.

When Jenny Weaver watched a movie called "The Craft" about a group of teen witches, she didn't think much about it. Soon, she started following some of the occultic practices laid out in the film.

“What started off as something innocent where I’m just connecting with energy and the universe and vibes and all these innocent things that we see, took me down a path of just dark desperation,” Weaver told CBN News.

“I felt at one point I was living in like a haunted house,” Weaver continued. “I was hearing scratches on the wall right next to me. I would feel a brush by me and be terrified that somebody was here in the room with me. I always felt like I was being watched. It took me far into drugs. I ended up being homeless and on drugs, in and out of jails. For nine years of my life, I was in and out of a dark place.”
