

CN Morning Rundown: Nashville Police Officer Hears From God, Turns Away From Explosion

Here's a quick summary of the top stories on :

Nashville Police Officer Hears From God and Turns Away From Explosion

An emotional Officer James Wells told the media Sunday about an encounter with God. As one of the police officers responding to the scene prior to the explosion Christmas morning, he was on scene helping evacuate the public.

Before the recording began counting down to the coming explosion, Wells and his partner were parked right in front of the recreational vehicle, unaware that it was the vehicle in question. When asked to move the car and set up a perimeter, they did so.

Wells called for more backup to assist with evacuation. He began to look around the "high ground" for people on roofs or looking from parking garages, people who may have a secondary attack planned, he says in the video.

When going door to door during the evacuation, he heard the RV issue a 3-minute warning. At one point, he began walking back to his car to get his "heavy plates" in preparation for whatever was about to happen. He was told again to move the car, this time out of the blast radius.

Trump Reelection Strategies: A Midnight Meeting on Christmas Eve Continues the Fight

of . He also holds a doctorate in philosophy and believes the United States Constitution must be defended. As a result, Byrne insists that the American people not give in to what he perceives as a rigged election. He is funding many efforts to ensure President Donald J. Trump is inaugurated on Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Byrne was at the White House for a Christmas Eve meeting to work on plans to support the president. Others in attendance include Gen. Michael Flynn and attorney Sidney Powell.

Byrne has stated that President Trump is “up to his waist” in snakes who are betraying him, adding that many would-be supporters are betraying the president for future multimillion- dollars jobs and recognition.

The meeting at the White House lasted more than four hours. During this meeting, Byrne said, “The young people in the White House are wonderful, and they just love President Trump and are fighting for him. The senior staff, including White House counsel led by Pat Cipollone, don’t understand the movement at hand and undercut him. They keep information from him and don’t carry out his orders.

Jonathan Cahn’s Urgent Message for Believers: ‘Who Will You Serve?’

At a time when we celebrate the light of the world coming to save us from our sins, bestselling author Jonathan Cahn says we must also remember we are called to be the light until Jesus returns.

Cahn says this is of paramount importance as we head into the Georgia election, and we must contend in the Spirit against the dark forces coming against our nation. {eoa}
