

CN Morning Rundown: Why We Are About to Experience an Epic and Unprecedented Housing Market Crash

Here's a quick summary of the top stories on :

Why We Are About to Experience an Epic and Unprecedented Housing Market Crash

You may not want to buy a house right now. What goes up must eventually come down, and we have just entered the "down" side of that equation.

Over the past two years, home prices in the United States have gone up nearly 40%. Now, mortgage rates are rising at a pace that is truly frightening, and they are likely to go even higher in the months ahead as the Federal Reserve continues to fight a relentless war against inflation.

Needless to say, higher mortgage rates mean higher potential mortgage payments for prospective home buyers, and so millions of Americans are being priced out of the marketplace right now. The only thing that is going to bring those buyers back into the marketplace is for home prices to go down, and that is already starting to happen in some areas of the nation.

Franklin Graham Applauds Michigan Football Coach Jim Harbaugh for Pro-Life Stance

Evangelist Franklin Graham lauded University of Michigan head football coach Jim Harbaugh for taking a bold pro-life stance at a recent "Right to Life" event in Plymouth, Michigan.

In his keynote speech, Harbaugh didn't mince words and made his stance against abortion clear:

"I believe in having the courage to let the unborn be born," Harbaugh said, according to the Detroit Catholic. "I love life. I believe in having a loving care and respect for life and death."

Streaming of Jonathan Cahn's Blockbuster 'The Harbingers of Things to Come' Now Available

Ever since The Harbinger by New York Times bestselling author Jonathan Cahn was released in 2011, followed by The Harbinger II: The Return in 2020, people have been asking: "Has the mystery continued? Have more harbingers manifested? Is America closer than ever to judgment? What does the future hold?"

After years of holding back, Cahn finally allowed audiences a glimpse into the ancient mysteries that lie behind what is happening in America and the world today—and in the future. Cahn's explosive new motion picture, The Harbingers of Things to Come, was a blockbuster success, topping the charts as one of the top five films viewed across the nation and the third highest per screen average for the two days it was featured in theaters.

The first showing alone saw the film rank No. 2 at the box office as the second highest grossing film nationally. In total, the explosive motion picture saw almost 100,000 people in just two nights. {eoa}