

Kenneth Copeland Takes to Airwaves to Speak on Coronavirus Pandemic

Amidst the recent pandemic of COVID-19, or the coronavirus, Evangelist Kenneth Copeland is compelling pastors and believers everywhere not to panic and to stay in faith. Copeland was scheduled to go on live television to speak to the public about the coronavirus, which has caused widespread fear and panic among the public.

More than 4,600 people worldwide have died in recent months from the coronavirus, according to . There have been more than 126,000 documented cases of COVID-19.

You can watch the live broadcast here beginning at 8 p.m. ET.

Stay tuned to for the full story on Copeland's broadcast.