An ultraluxurious, Christian addiction-treatment program?

That's the vision of Valiant Recovery in Kelowna, British Columbia, a treatment facility designed for uber-affluent addicts looking for a program that fits with their Christian beliefs. While the concept may seem like an oxymoron to some, CEO Royce Dockrill is on a mission to reach wealthy Christian addicts who want deliverance.

The individualized 30-, 42-, 60- or 90-day programs offer intensive treatment that blends secular and spiritual counseling. The nondiscounted cost of the 30-day program is $36,000.
