A pastor at a Presbyterian church gave a message to her congregants that if Jesus was walking the earth right now, she believes He would help with the pro-choice cause.

"If Jesus were here today, He would be a clinic escort," the pastor says. "Distracting women from the hatred of the protestors.

"I expect He would have a stern word for self-righteous legislators who use abortion as a political issue rather than showing compassion for the people seeking abortions," she continues. "If Jesus were giving His sermon today, He might also have said 'blessed are those who end pregnancies.'"

If you thought this twisting of the Sermon on the Mount couldn't get any worse, it does.

"I have been pregnant four times. I have had two abortions and I have two amazing children. Each of my reproductive decisions to have children and not to have children were sacred decisions because they reflect the moral responsibility of reproductive power. That is part of our inheritance as human are those who end pregnancies for they will be known for their lovingkindness," the pastor concludes.

"I've honestly never seen something this demonic behind the pulpit," Saldivar says.

This message shows us how off-course both our culture and American Christianity have become. Saldivar points out the demonic nature of this teaching and how it is leading people astray.

"That is not a church; that is a demonic temple," Saldivar says. "We've seen it with United Methodist Churches that are ordaining drag don't know how you get down the road of being this deceived and demonized. Clearly, there's spiritual forces at work. Clearly there's a demonic agenda. Clearly there's a demonic spirit motivating this lady."

He also points out that she was so bold speaking up for abortion, and it is time for true Christians to be bold enough to speak out against it.

"The Bible commands us to be a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the unborn, and we need to talk about this stuff; we need to expose this stuff. It's wicked, it's demonic [and] it's happening all around us," Saldivar says.

The enemy of our souls is working tirelessly to get us off track and to take us down a road that is not pleasing to God. This deception is running rampant through the church, and it is necessary for us right now to meditate on the Word of God and seek Him in prayer.
