

Dr. Stella Immanuel Says People Are Waking Up to Vaccine Truth

A recent Washington Post/ABC News poll revealed that 72% of Americans would rather quit their job than be forced to take the COVID-19 vaccination. Many employers are now mandating the shots for their employees and the Biden administration has announced new executive orders requiring the shots for private employees as well as all federal employees and contractors, with no exceptions.

Biden announced his broad vaccine mandate that would impact as many as 100 million Americans.

Dr. Stella Immanuel, author of Let America Live (Charisma House 2021), told Newsmax's John Bachman she applauds those people who would rather take a stand against the mandate than be forced to take the shot.

"I think that is excellent," says Immanuel, who has been mocked by the secular media for her stance against the Centers for Disease Control and Dr. Anthony Fauci concerning treatments for COVID-19. "It shows that our people are waking up because we cannot continue to accept what they continue to push on us. We really need to stand up and just say, 'We cannot be forced to take this vaccination.'

"The only reason this continues to drag on is when good people say and do nothing," Immanuel adds. "I'm glad people are waking up because right now we are beginning to see that what is going on is crazy. Look at what Dr. Fauci is saying, that he has no answer on natural immunity. That is not even science."

For the rest of John Bachman's interview with Dr. Stella

Immanuel, click here. The interview begins at the 51:16 mark.
{eoa}

Follow breaking news like this on our new platform, CHARISMA PLUS.