

Egyptian Parliament Prays at First Session After Revolution

(Reuters/Asmaa Waguih)

Members of the parliament stand and pray during the first Egyptian parliament session after the revolution that ousted former President Hosni Mubarak, in Cairo on Monday. Egypt's parliament began its first session on Monday since an election put Islamists in charge of the assembly following the overthrow of Mubarak in February.