

Election 2024: The People Have Spoken

The election is over, and the people have spoken.

First, let us be thankful. We thank God for an election with a clear answer and no controversy over the outcome. We thank God that our democratic institutions held up for a peaceful transition of power. And we are thankful that God spared Donald Trump's life to give the people a clear choice between the political parties.

Then, let us continue to pray for America. Pray that God will bind up the wounds of the election and help us to forgive opponents and move forward. Pray for a spirit of unity with cooperation between our people and an understanding of shared American values. Let us also pray for those in power, no matter which party, as God instructed us in 1 Timothy 2:2b (NIV), so "that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness." Above all, let us pray that government policies will line up with Christian values.

In 2017, many Christians believed we had won a great political victory, and they became complacent. As a result, the American church missed God, and judgments came to America to bring us back to righteousness (see Isa. 26:9). Since then, we have suffered natural disasters, the COVID plague, riots, crime waves, government corruption and attacks on our children.

Now in 2024, the people have spoken. They are tired of the suffering and are looking for answers.
