

Elon Musk is 'Ready to Serve' in Trump's Cabinet

Could we see Elon Musk rise to a governmental role?

In his interview with Reuters, Trump discussed how he would think about adding Musk to a cabinet or advisory role with his administration if re-elected.

"He's a very smart guy. I certainly would, if he would do it, I certainly would. He's a brilliant guy," Trump told the outlet.

Musk then took to his platform, X, to respond where he posted an image of himself behind a podium titled . or rather, Department of Government Efficiency. Musk simply captioned the photo with: "I am willing to serve" above the image.

Recently, Trump and Musk took to X where the two discussed in an interview the attempted assassination on Trump's life, Biden and Harris' policies, energy, education and more.

"The election is coming up, and people want to hear about the economy," Trump told Musk. "...that's the thing people most care about, in my opinion."

Musk also chimed in how the government needs to re-evaluate how the U.S. is spending taxpayer dollars.

"I think it would be great to just have a government efficiency commission that looks at these things to make sure taxpayer money is spent in a good way," he stated. Musk then told Trump he'd be "happy to help out on such a commission."
